FINE JEWELLERY

IN RARE FORM

Envelope your fingers with Scavia's triple-band double-finger ring. The thick ring is fashioned in white gold, featuring a 5ct rare rhodochrosite heavily framed with a multitude of white diamonds. www.scavia.it

COMING FULL CIRCLE

Singular, colourless diamonds are set apart in these 18K rose and white gold set of rings from Hans D. Krieger. Stacked in uniform, staggered formations, the bubble-like silhouette encompasses the rings in one full circle.

PRETTY PINK

Jaquet Droz tones down this particular jewelled ladies' piece with a more minimal approach. Decorated with diamonds, astorite, and mother-of-pearl, the Petite Heure Minute timepiece focuses on the stone's natural inlay. The off-centre dial is a subtle nod to the brand's signature Lady 8, a style synonym with the brand's idea of feminine elegance. Limited to 28 pieces. www.jaquet-droz.com

Seasonal Blooms

German jeweller Stenzhorn reinterprets the "statement" necklace, mixing minimal lines with an outstanding addition. The Four Noble Ones is the brand's latest series, comprising four jewellery pieces that each represent the four seasons. Representing the symbol for Autumn, the chrysanthemum-themed necklace is fashioned from 18K white gold set in pavé diamonds, with the aforementioned flower created entirely in ruby. www.stenzhorn.com

Blushing Gems

Mixing several diamond shapes, Dehres brings together pink and white diamonds in this sparkling design. Completing these pink diamond earring pendants, fancy light pink and fancy light purplish pink pear-shaped and princess-cut diamonds are surrounded with minute white diamonds set in gold. www.dehres.com

Benjamin Chau, Deputy Executive Director at HKTDC commended the show's record success, despite the current economic challenges. "This demonstrates that the jewellery industry remains confident about business prospects this year, reinforcing Hong Kong's position as a proven global promotion and sourcing hub for the industry. The local jewellery industry should not overlook these opportunities."
